Harvard Catalyst's mentoring program, Career Catalyst, formerly the Mentee-Mentor Matching Program, is a strategic, one-year program for early-career researchers.

Through bi-monthly meetings and program-wide events, participants learn the importance of establishing successful mentoring relationships to promote personal and professional satisfaction. Each participant is paired with a senior mentor and small peer group.

“ This is one of the best experiences we've had as post-docs. Being able to connect with like-minded postdocs who share a lot of the same concerns and expectations has really been great. Our collective experience has been significantly enhanced by our mentor's excellent guidance. ”
